To whom it may concern,

I am interested in applying for the position as a City and Regional planner at your planning firm. I have observed the imperative necessity for city planners in the ever growing, urban landscape. I am confident in my communication, collaboration, and critical thinking skills in order to become a successful planner.

City planning first interested me during my freshman year of high school when I took an AP Human Geography course. It was fascinating to see the way cities have developed over time considering specific aspects such as the environment, population, sustainability, and other demographics. But it was also very alarming to see the negative effects of urbanization such as pollution and urban sprawl. My skillset includes effective collaboration, which is essential to planning successfully. I have been in multiple leadership positions at school and at work, which has allowed me to develop the skills needed to reach an effective solution. I am able to analyze demographic information to discern trends in population, employment, and health. So, it's my mission to contribute to a society where I'm able to provide people with a quality, sustainable way of life.

Strong city planning is needed to create a sustainable and a forward-looking society. This position would allow me to use my education and gain real world exposure of how planning affects a growing city, and its way of life. I look forward to discussing what I can bring to this position. Thank you for your time and consideration of my application.

Sincerely,

Naomi Wilbur
